

The Confederate Flag Was Carried by a Masked Man. The photos published around the world caused the government to condemn the entire group as racist. Chrystia Freeland described how a black MP was traumatized and hurt when he saw such a disgusting photo.

Freeland refused to offer an olive branch because of the hurtful evil flags. The single image was used to disparage the entire rally. The single photo of an unknown flag bearer was used to vilify the entire group.

Freeland replied that her hearing was fine and she clearly heard remarks by her Liberal colleague, MP Greg Fergus, who she said explained how it feels for Black Canadians to see swastikas and confederate flags in the nation's capital.

So who took the photo? Who took this photo seen around the world that Trudeau and Freeland used to shut down any conversations? The only high-quality images come from a single photographer... his name is Dave Chan.

Here is the reverse angle of Dave Chan photographing the masked flag bearer. From the series of photos we can see Dave Chan followed the flag for a while, getting some good angles of the masked man (or agent-provocateur?)

So is Dave Chan? He's a HOC photographer.

About

Dave Chan is an award-winning professional photojournalist based in Ottawa, Canada, specializing in portrait, editorial, event, and corporate photography.

Dave works to bring out the best in every person he photographs, from political figures and C-suite executives to locals and the neighbor next door. His portraits have been praised for revealing each subject's unique humanity in all its distinct, poignant and sometimes eccentric ways.

Dave was the official photographer to Prime Minister Paul Martin and photographed his daily life on Parliament Hill and around the world. Dave's editorial photographs capture unique moments in time and have appeared in every major daily Canadian newspaper and numerous international publications, including The New York Times, Der Spiegel and Paris Match.

Dave Chan's LinkedIn page lists House of Commons as his employer. So a HOC photographer was sent to take photos of the freedom rally and was able to appear right next to a masked man carrying a confederate flag. Such a coincidence or such luck?

Perhaps someone was paid to help the government smear the rally and Dave Chan was the guy tasked with getting the perfect shot so Trudeau and Freeland could use the race card?

Here is more of Dave Chan's work. He does well with the Liberals.

Chief of the Cowessess First Nation Cadmus Delorme.

Dave Chan completed his assignment well. Was he involved with the set-up of a photo-op? We might never know unless the authorities ask Dave Chan how he was fortunate enough to create a viral image that was used by the government to smear the protest.

Let's have some answers.

Honk Honk.
